Reflections

I couldn't conceive, before I had to leave
I left my home, and headed for Rome
I knew not a soul, but it didn't matter at all Possible trepidations and fears, just didn't appear
Once I boarded the plane, I knew I'd never be the same Thinking about old friends I'd leave behind, hoping people would replace them in my mind.
After a long flight, the feeling was right Anxiousness built, I could hardly sit still
We did finally arrive, I've never felt so alive
The travels begun, it was time for fun
Foreign lands, ancient sands, glistening pools,
Shining jewels, ride the train, to an outback terrain, Experience the unknown, your mind will be blown, learn to speak, you're reaching the peak.
Assimilate, the times are great, travel all the time
You're feeling fine, try the foods, buy the goods,
Meet great friends, hope it never ends
The things we've seen, you can't even dream
We thought a half a year would never be here
Dread going home, my how you've grown

Missing you already my newly found friends,
It's getting closer and closer to the time when it ends.
I can't believe it's time to go, You can't help but think how much it does blow,
It's an amazing and once in a lifetime bond we all do share,
For each of you I deeply care, although we must part,
I know in my heart, we will be close in mind,
All of the time, whether distanced by towns or Even states, you know we'll have those special dates
The crazy times you know we will spend,
When we are all together again, so when you're down
And feeling blue, you don't have to think what you should do,
Look at some pictures, reminisce, or make a call
You shouldn't hesitate at all
So when we're back at home, our stories we'll tell
The hum-drum life will begin, and we'll be bored as hell!
For we are the only people who can really share,
The experiences, the best times ever, and even our departing tears.
No matter where life leads us or what we will do,
The city of Rome, will always be our home.
